July Meeting: I-74 Mississippi River Bridge Design - Challenges of Maintaining Traffic during Construction

This month's presenter is John Nelson, Project Manager for Hanson's I-74 Mississippi River Bridge design team. As a member of the Benesch Team, a large team of consulting firms, Hanson's is responsible for the design of the interstate, ramps, and local street improvements in Illinois, design of traffic signals, geotechnical studies, design of retaining walls in Iowa, and preparation of the traffic management plan for the corridor.

In addition to replacing the I-74 Bridge over the Mississippi River, the project includes I-74 corridor improvements from Avenue of the Cities to 53rd Street. The Benesch Team is responsible for preparation of construction documents for the Central Section of the corridor (from 12th avenue to Lincoln Road) which includes the new Mississippi River crossing bridge, widening and reconstruction of interstate and ramps, and associated local roads improvements.
